Course of your visit

What to see in the Nobel Museum

This interesting museum traces the history of the Nobel Prize, the laureates from its inception to the present day, and its creator Alfred Nobel. It also includes a section on the famous award ceremony held in Stockholm.

We recommend you start by watching the film (in English with English subtitles) tracing the history of several awards, then download the free audio guide in French via a QR code on your phone.

We recommend that you let us guide you through the entire museum, with 38 stops lasting around 45 minutes.

Throughout your visit, you'll learn more about the history of the prize and its creator Alfred Nobel. The museum is very visual, with screens where you can read about all the laureates, such as their biographies or interesting information about why they were awarded the Nobel Prize, their reaction to the announcement, and then showcases displaying their personal objects.

Unlike other museums in Stockholm, such as the Vasa Museum or the Skansen Museum, we found that there were few activities for children. As the museum is small, there's no time for them to get bored.

- Don't miss the film retracing the history of several awards

Nobel Museum our opinion

During your visit to Stockholm's historic center (Gamla Stan), we recommend a quick stop at this small museum with its warm atmosphere (we stayed about 1 hour).

It's certainly not the most interactive museum in Stockholm, but thanks to the audio guide (free by phone) we learned many interesting anecdotes about the Nobel Prize and the different laureates. If you're coming to Stockholm, we think it's worthwhile to learn more about this famous annual ceremony and get together in this iconic location.

For easy access to the main points of interest, we recommend the Normalm district (today's city center) .

We wish you an excellent trip to Stockholm, and one last word of advice: don't miss its incredible archipelago!
