Visit Matera and its Sassi: Puglia's must-see troglodyte town

By Matthieu

Matera is an extraordinary troglodyte town, unique in the world. It's a must-see on your trip to Puglia. Its history and architecture set it apart from other Italian towns.

A UNESCO World Heritage site, Matera is also one of the oldest inhabited towns in the world. People were already living here over 7000 years ago, and some families were still occupying the caves as late as 1952.

Today, the finest hotels still stand side by side with caves left in their natural state. The town is a maze of alleyways, stairways and breathtaking views of troglodyte dwellings and rock churches. It's impossible to remain indifferent to its unique atmosphere.

If you're planning a trip to Puglia, don't miss Matera. At the end of this article, you'll find our interactive map with useful addresses to help you plan your stay.

Matera, a must on your itinerary

Many people wonder whether Matera is part of Puglia. Actually, no: Matera is the capital of neighboring Basilicata. But it's so close (just 1 hour from Bari) that it's a natural fit for an itinerary in Puglia.

If your stay is short, we recommend Matera over Bari. It's an incomparable city, at once authentic, moving and spectacular.

The best guided tour

To fully appreciate Matera's wealth of attractions, book a guided tour in French. You'll discover several emblematic sites with a passionate local guide. A complete experience that we recommend without hesitation.

You can explore Matera on foot. About 3 hours are enough to see the main points of interest, but the town easily deserves two full days to soak up its atmosphere.

Our walking itinerary

1. Sasso Barisano: a photogenic maze of natural and man-made caves.
2. Sant'Agostino church: superb Baroque architecture and exceptional view of the canyon.
3. Madonna delle Virtù: rock church with ancient frescoes.
4. Duomo di Matera: the city's most important Romanesque cathedral, dominating the entire site.
5. Casa Noha: immersive museum retracing the history of Matera (30-minute film, highly instructive).
6. MUSMA: a highly original contemporary art museum housed in a former troglodyte convent.
7. Sasso Caveoso: a more authentic, less touristy district.

8. San Pietro Caveoso: cliffside church, emblematic of the site.
9. Santa Lucia alle Malve: one of the most beautiful rock churches (€3.50 admission).
10. Piazza San Pietro: superb viewpoint over the town and the natural park opposite.
11. Gelateria I Vizi degli Angeli: for excellent artisan gelato.
12. Osteria Malatesta: simple, tasty local cuisine at lunchtime.
13. Radino Wine Bar: refined address for dining, excellent value for money.
14. Evening stroll: the evening lights make Matera even more magical.

Matera, an open-air movie set

Matera's narrow streets have been the backdrop for many international films, including Mel Gibson's The Passion of the Christ, Wonder Woman and, more recently, James Bond - Dying Can Wait (2021). The city's raw, timeless charm inspires filmmakers the world over.

The most beautiful viewpoints around Matera

- Belvedere Murgia Timone: situated on the hill opposite the town, it offers spectacular views of Matera and the sassi. Accessible by car or on foot via a suspension bridge. Best done at sunset.
- Belvedere Luigi Guerricchio: Located at the northern end of the historic center, this belvedere offers an unobstructed view of the Sasso Barisano and the Gravina. Less frequented than Murgia Timone, it allows you to observe Matera from a more urban angle, with a clear reading of the volumes, terraces and organization of the Sassi.
- Belvedere San Pietro Caveoso: Located close to the church of San Pietro
